

Public Regulation

Joseph, Greenwald & Laake brings challenges to government action on behalf of its clients. The Firm has successfully challenged a local ordinance banning smoking (even outdoors on one's own property), an attempt by a local municipality to annex a portion of the county, an attempt by a local municipality to prevent college students from living together, and a wide variety of other regulations.

Whether proper procedures were not followed, a law was violated or the actions taken by the government are unconstitutional, the Firm is available to challenge the government on behalf of our clients.
