Rama Taib-Lopez represents individuals throughout Maryland in complex family law disputes and related immigration matters that often arise involving non-citizen spouses and special immigrant juveniles. She has extensive courtroom and alternative resolution experience in every type of family law dispute and immigration proceeding her clients may encounter, with a particular focus on the following:

- Divorce
- Alimony
- Child Custody & Visitation
- Child Support
- Marital Property Division
- Separation Agreements
- Pensions & Retirement Accounts
- Enforcement of Court Orders
- Contempt Proceedings
- Domestic Violence
- Special Immigrant Juvenile Status

Rama began developing her deep understanding of the interplay between family and immigration law long before she joined the firm. During law school, she performed pro bono legal services for underprivileged clients as an Immigration Clinic Rule 16 Student Attorney. Rama also spends her spare time as a volunteer for the Maryland Immigrant Rights Coalition. These unique real world and courtroom experiences enable her to help clients overcome the numerous immigration challenges that frequently arise during divorce proceedings, custody disputes and other highly-emotional family law matters.

Clients often walk through Rama's door feeling defeated or overlooked by the legal system. They immediately find that she is a dedicated advocate, counselor and litigator who will go above and beyond to ensure their rights are enforced and protected to
