Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR)

Is there anyone more qualified to run an ADR proceeding than a proven, veteran litigator? We think not. At JGL, we are known for making the difference between reaching a settlement and wasting more time and resources. JGL's attorneys understand the responsibilities and inherent sensitivities involved in a matter that has been submitted for ADR.

JGL's ADR attorneys serve as the catalyst for working constructively with disputing parties and their counsel to achieve a fair and just outcome. We are valued for our ethical, impartial, and balanced approach to problem-solving. We are also well-versed in identifying and dealing with delay tactics, disruptive and/or particularly sensitive and emotional dynamics, and difficult personalities.

JGL can also assist you in selecting the most qualified neutral third party for your case. We consider substantive experience, process expertise, personality, and professional style to be important factors in ADR initiatives. We bring a deep bench of experience to many specialized legal disciplines, including:

- Family law
- Estates and trusts
- Medical negligence
- Labor and employment
- Personal injury
- Commercial disputes
- Civil rights
- Business and shareholder disputes
