Civil Litigation

Individuals and businesses turn to JGL for tactical legal advocacy involving dispute resolution, litigation, and trial and appellate counsel. We are known for resolving complex and difficult state and federal civil disputes. Our creativity and tenacity are shown by impressive results in and out of court – particularly in cases other firms were unwilling to take.

We believe in getting you the right result in a way that conserves your time and resources. If a trial becomes unavoidable, we are strategic and seasoned courtroom advocates for plaintiffs and defendants alike, giving us a unique point of view when formulating overarching litigation strategy. Over the years, we have negotiated and litigated an array of multi-million-dollar settlements and jury verdicts. We have also successfully defended businesses and individuals in complex, high-stakes litigation.

Administrative Litigation

Administrative litigation involves disputes with government agencies, challenges to agency decisions, and proceedings involving regulatory requirements. These matters may include licensing disputes, enforcement actions, agency investigations, and appeals of administrative rulings.

Arbitration & Mediation

Arbitration and mediation provide alternatives to resolving disputes through traditional court proceedings. Arbitration involves presenting a dispute to a neutral third party for a decision, while mediation focuses on helping the parties negotiate a resolution. Both processes can address business disagreements, contract disputes, and other civil matters.

Sexual Assault & Abuse

Civil claims involving sexual assault and abuse seek accountability for harm caused by individuals or institutions. These matters may involve claims against perpetrators, organizations, employers, schools, or other entities whose actions or failures contributed to the abuse. Civil proceedings may address physical, emotional, and financial harm and provide a path to pursue compensation.
